COMMUNITY SERVICES DIRECTORY

2016-2018

Dear Neighbors:

Access to information on where to turn for local health and human care services is very important. The Community Services Directory lists health and human care services available in our Northern Shenandoah Valley and provides a valuable tool for Human Resources professionals and Social Service providers.

Over the years, United Way has assessed our community needs and has provided special resource information aimed at current issues affecting local residents.

The Community Services Directory is updated through a volunteer effort every two years. We thank our friends at RR Donnelley for producing this valuable tool for our United Way community in the Northern Shenandoah Valley. Additionally, we want to express our appreciation to United Way volunteers, staff and The Northern Virginia Daily, for their outstanding support.

501(c)(3) or governmental human service organizations that desire to be placed in future editions of this directory may request inclusion by writing to the United Way of Northern Shenandoah Valley. Please include information, as modeled in this publication. Submissions and requests for changes can also be made online at www.unitedwaynsv.org/community-service-directory-updates.

The directory includes an alphabetical index in the first part of this book, as well as an index by service area in the back of the book. The main body of the directory has detailed outlines of over 150 agencies. There is also a listing of national agencies and 1-800 resource numbers. Also included in the rear portion of the book is a listing of local support groups available in the community.

We hope this resource is helpful for you and we encourage you to Give...Advocate...Volunteer...and LIVE UNITED.

Sincerely,

Nadine Pottinga, President and Chief Executive Officer
